PREFACE

Some of the problems dealt with in this book first came to my attention while working with a team of scholars from the University of Michigan on the Petra papyri at the American Center of Oriental Research in Amman from 1995 to 2000. The book itself, however, was written in the years since 2000 at the Institut für Altertumskunde of the University of Cologne.

Work profited from discussions with several members of the Michigan team working on the Petra papyri: Robert Caldwell, Traianos Gagos and especially Ludwig Koenen.

I owe a further debt to many connected with the Cologne Institut für Altertumskunde, to Jürgen Hammerstaedt and Wolfgang Dieter Lebek for general advice, to Charikleia Armoni, John Landon and Georg Petzl for help in points of detail, and to Antonio Bikić for checking cross-references. Sophie Geiseler helped to prepare photographic material and diagrams. Benjamin Cartlidge, Robert Hübner, Klaus Maresch and Philip Schmitz kindly took the time to read the entire manuscript and to suggest many improvements.

Help was also provided by scholars in other departments of the University of Cologne. In the Seminar für Ägyptologie I profited from the assistance of Anja Kootz, Gesa Schenke and Heinz-Josef Thissen, and from discussions with Philippe Derchain and Martin Ziermann. Theodore Kwasman (Institut für Judaistik) provided advice on Aramaic texts. There were also discussions with Günther Binding (Kunsthistorisches Institut, Architekturgeschichte), Henner von Hesberg (Archäologisches Institut) and José Luis García Ramón (Institut für Linguistik).

Many others in the fields of papyrology, classical studies, archaeology, geography and Egyptology deserve mention. They include—I leave their institutional affiliations aside—John N. Adams (Oxford), Isabella Andorlini (Parma), Giuseppina Azzarello (Udine), Roger Bagnall (New York), Ruey-Lin Chang (Strasbourg), Juan Chapa (Pamplona), Hannah Cotton (Jerusalem), Paola Davoli (Lecce), Jean-Luc Fournet (Paris), William Furley (Heidelberg), Nikolaos Gonis (London), Inga Gotsiridze (Tbilisi), Dieter Hagedorn (Cologne), Andrea Jördens (Heidelberg), Francisca Hoogendijk (Leiden), Chrysanthos Kanellopoulos (Athens), James Keenan (Chicago), Nikos Litinas (Ann Arbor), Stephanos Matthaios (Thessalonike), Fritz Mitthof (Vienna), Günter Poethke (Berlin), Fabian Reiter (Berlin), Matthias Ritter (Cologne), Cornelia Römer (Vienna), Maren Schentuleit (Göttingen), Markus Stein (Düsseldorf) and Christian Tietze (Potsdam).

I extend my thanks to all of the above as well as to the persons and institutions mentioned under Photo Courtesy (p. 239) for providing images and permission to publish them.
